BIOGRAPHY

Leah is a Partner in Cox & Palmer's Fredericton office. Her legal practice is focused on family law, representing clients in custody disputes, marital property, divorce proceedings and common law separations.

With a passion for helping families navigate the complexities of family law, Leah brings extensive experience in a diverse range of cases. She specializes in complex family law issues and finds innovative solutions even in the most adversarial situations. Leah understands the personal nature of family matters and is dedicated to providing compassionate guidance while fiercely advocating for her client's best interests. She has experience navigating complex negotiations or advocating for her clients in the courtroom. Leah is committed to achieving the best possible outcomes for families during challenging times; whether you are seeking a divorce, involved in a parenting dispute, or navigating an intricate asset division, Leah is happy to help as a strong advocate on your side.

In addition to her family law practice, Leah maintains a general litigation practice and has experience appearing in all levels of court.

Upon graduating from Carleton University with a degree in Public Affairs and Policy Management, she went on to work for the Federal Government before deciding to pursue a legal career. Leah began her career with Cox & Palmer as a summer student and remained with the firm following her bar call in 2016.

In her spare time, Leah loves to stay active, frequently taking advantage of the trails that Fredericton has to offer and spending time with her husband and two children.

EXPERIENCE

Leah completed a judicial internship at the New Brunswick Court of Appeal in her final year of her law degree.
